abbvie + GREY

CREON BRANDED

ACTIVATE CAMPAIGN

March 20, 2026

OLV OPTION 02
Order Up

Insight

If food is how we show love, CREON helps EPI patients receive it.

Synopsis

In a single, real-world food truck location, three chefs cook for the people who appreciate the comforts of food. One chef cooks for their mother, another for a couple, a third for a group of friends. In each scenario, one EPI patient already on CREON is receiving food.

Button usage

The button is a surrogate for a restaurant order up bell and a narrative device that punctuates a relatable moment. The button connects CREON to an eating experience, rather than activating an immediate before and after solution.

Glowing pancreas

All patients on treatment will have a glowing pancreas to show that they have EPI.

OLV VIDEO OPTION 2

:60 DTC OLV SCRIPT – Order Up

INT food truck. A chef cooks an elaborate smash burger.

CHEF 1 VO: Not everyone can eat my food. Even my own mother. Diarrhea, gas, bloating, oily stools. Ugh. Turned out her digestive problems were a pancreatic issue called exocrine pancreatic insufficiency, or EPI.

Captions: Exocrine pancreatic insufficiency (EPI) can occur in conditions like cystic fibrosis, chronic pancreatitis, pancreatectomy, type 2 diabetes, or other conditions.

Actor portrayals.

CHEF 1 VO: Now that she found treatment, she's my biggest fan.

Chef hits a CREON button, like it's an order up button. DING Her mom appears at the food truck counter, her pancreas lit up in bright orange. She hands her mom the burger, and the mom smiles as she bites in.

Mom takes another bite and looks at her daughter with pride.

Another chef at another food truck makes quesadillas.

CHEF 2 VO: With CREON, you can look forward to my cooking.

AVO: CREON is a prescription medicine used to treat people who cannot digest food normally because their pancreas does not make enough enzymes.

Caption: CREON is a prescription medicine used to treat people who cannot digest food normally because their pancreas does not make enough enzymes.

Chef 2 hits a CREON button, like it's an order up button. DING

CHEF 2 VO: CREON is the #1 prescribed EPI treatment and is taken over meals.

Another person with a glowing pancreas receives the quesadilla. They hand half to their partner and get a kiss on the cheek.

AVO: CREON increases your body's ability to digest and absorb nutrients, which may relieve some of the symptoms of EPI.

Captions: Tell your doctor about any changes in your symptoms, as your treatment may need adjusting over time.

Over ISI, beautiful shots of CHEF 3 baking and icing a gorgeous cake. Slow, deliberate actions that don't distract from the safety.

Captions: Tell your doctor if you have a history of intestinal blockage or scarring or thickening of your bowel wall (fibrosing colonopathy).

AVO: CREON may increase your chance of fibrosing colonopathy, a rare bowel disorder. Tell your doctor if you are allergic to pork, have gout, kidney problems, or worsening of painful, swollen joints. Do not chew capsules, as this may cause mouth irritation. These are not all the side effects of CREON.

Captions: Call your doctor if you have any unusual or severe gastrointestinal symptoms or allergic reactions.

Captions: Take CREON as directed by your doctor and always with food.

Captions: Other side effects may include blood sugar changes, gas, dizziness, sore throat, and cough.

Chef 3 hits a CREON button, like it's an order up button. DING Another person with a glowing pancreas and their friends take the cake from a truck called "Take the Cake". Its sign reads "A party without cake is just a meeting."

They're seated at a picnic table. As the friend group cheers, we see the RTBs featured on coasters and iced onto the cake.

SUPER: #1 prescribed EPI treatment / Visit CREONinfo.com to learn more

AVO: Could your digestive problems be your pancreas? Ask your doctor if CREON is right for you.

We cut to the end card with a pack shot featuring CREON capsules along with the logo: CREON (pancrelipase) Delayed-Release Capsules

SUPER: LEARN HOW ABBVIE COULD HELP YOU SAVE ON CREON (IMAGE OF LOGO)
SaveOnCREON.COM

Captions: Capsules shown are not actual size and do not represent exact color.

OLV OPTION 03

Stay Open

Insight/Idea

CREON helps people with EPI keep themselves open to a variety of food options.

Synopsis

A studio background location: a man with EPI appears to be in a closed studio environment, but when he presses the CREON button it changes the point of view to reveal that he's in an open environment and his food options are open too.

Button usage

The CREON button activates a different point of view, showing how CREON helps people with EPI stay open to diverse types of food.
This avoids any explicit before/after.

Glowing pancreas

Lit to highlight what could be the actual problem behind common digestive issues.
It stays on throughout the spot to maintain consistent identification of the pancreas.

OLV VIDEO OPTION 2

:60 DTC OLV SCRIPT – Open Up Updated

We see Tyler, a man in his mid-fifties, in an infinite blue studio. He's standing up looking at the camera. We hear a VO.

VO: We're always told that symptoms like gas, bloating, diarrhea, and oily stools are "stomach issues" … But what if I told you that the real problem could actually be your pancreas?

At this moment, we see a spotlight turn on and project a glowing orange pancreas on Tyler's t-shirt. The VO continues.

VO: It could be a condition called exocrine pancreatic insufficiency, or EPI. That means your pancreas isn't producing the enzymes you need for digestion, restricting your food.

Captions: Exocrine pancreatic insufficiency (EPI) can be caused by type 2 diabetes, cystic fibrosis, chronic pancreatitis, pancreatectomy, or other conditions.

We see Tyler take a step forward towards a plinth with a "CREON button" on it. We see Tyler press the "CREON button" and suddenly the walls of the studio break open. We now see the glowing pancreas on his t-shirt disappear.

VO: Activate CREON at mealtime and open up a world of food.

Captions: CREON is a prescription medicine used to treat people who cannot digest food normally because their pancreas does not make enough enzymes.

We see an urban environment outside, and Tyler starts walking towards several food trucks parked along the sidewalk serving different types of food: Burgers, Mexican Food, Greek Food, Thai Food, Jamaican Food, and Salads and Wraps.

We see Tyler stop by the burger food truck and make an order. We see him take the first bite of his burger and continue to eat normally.

VO: CREON is a prescription medicine and the #1 prescribed EPI treatment, replacing the enzymes you need to digest and absorb nutrients.

Captions: CREON replenishes enzymes so the body can break down food and absorb its nutrients.

During the ISI, we continue to see Tyler making the most of every bite of his burger while interacting with people around him.

VO: CREON may increase your chance of fibrosing colonopathy, a rare bowel disorder. Tell your doctor if you are allergic to pork, have gout, kidney problems, or worsening of painful, swollen joints. Do not chew capsules, as this may cause mouth irritation. These are not all the side effects of CREON.

Captions: Call your doctor if you have any unusual or severe gastrointestinal symptoms or allergic reactions.

Captions: Take CREON as directed by your doctor and always with food.

Captions: Other side effects may include blood sugar changes, gas, dizziness, sore throat, and cough.

We see the RTBs featured on items around the food truck, like menu boards, coasters, sauce bottles, placemats and receipts.

SUPER: #1 prescribed EPI treatment / 2 million+ patients prescribed / Visit CREONinfo.com to learn more

VO: Be open to the food you like again. Ask your doctor if CREON could be right for you.

We cut to the end card with a pack shot featuring CREON capsules along with the complete logo with indication: CREON (pancrelipase) Delayed-Release Capsules

OLV VIDEO OPTION 2

:60 DTC OLV SCRIPT – Open Up Updated

We see Tyler, a man in his mid-fifties, in an infinite blue studio. He's our host, and as he's standing up looking at the camera, he helps demonstrate EPI and its symptoms. As we hear the AVO, Tyler holds up signs that highlight and illustrate key messages of what's being said.

Ref.: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=MGxjIBEZvx0

VO You may have heard that symptoms like gas, bloating, diarrhea, and oily stools are "stomach issues" … But what if I told you that the problem could actually be your pancreas?

As "pancreas" is mentioned in the AVO, we see a spotlight turn on and project a glowing orange pancreas on Tyler's t-shirt. The AVO continues.

AVO: It could be a condition called exocrine pancreatic insufficiency, or EPI. That means your pancreas isn't producing the enzymes you need for digestion.

Captions: Exocrine pancreatic insufficiency (EPI) can be caused by type 2 diabetes, cystic fibrosis, chronic pancreatitis, pancreatectomy, or other conditions.

We see Tyler take a step forward towards a plinth with a "CREON button" on it. As he presses it, suddenly the walls of the studio break open, revealing an urban environment outside.

AVO: If you're struggling with EPI, CREON may help relieve some of the symptoms.
[ALT]: If EPI symptoms are boxing you in, CREON may help bring some relief.
[ALT]: If you're surrounded by EPI symptoms, CREON may help relieve some of them.
AVO Contd.: Like it helped Joe…

We cut to another man, Joe, in his mid-fifties. He starts walking towards several food trucks parked along the sidewalk serving diverse types of food: Burgers, Mexican Food, Greek Food, Thai Food, Jamaican Food, and Salads and Wraps.

AVO: CREON is a prescription medicine used to treat people who cannot digest food normally because their pancreas does not make enough enzymes.

Captions: CREON is a prescription medicine used to treat people who cannot digest food normally because their pancreas does not make enough enzymes.

We see Joe stop by the burger food truck and make an order. He starts eating her burger.

AVO: CREON increases your body's ability to digest and absorb nutrients.

Captions: Tell your doctor about any changes in your symptoms, as your treatment may need adjusting over time.

During the ISI, we continue to see Joe making the most of every bite of her burger, as he interacts with people around him. We see the RTBs featured on items around the burger stand, like menu boards, coasters, sauce bottles, placemats and receipts.

SUPER: #1 prescribed EPI treatment / Visit CREONinfo.com to learn more

VO: CREON may increase your chance of fibrosing colonopathy, a rare bowel disorder. Tell your doctor if you are allergic to pork, have gout, kidney problems, or worsening of painful, swollen joints. Do not chew capsules, as this may cause mouth irritation. These are not all the side effects of CREON.

Captions: Call your doctor if you have any unusual or severe gastrointestinal symptoms or allergic reactions.

Captions: Take CREON as directed by your doctor and always with food.

Captions: Other side effects may include blood sugar changes, gas, dizziness, sore throat, and cough.

We cut back to Tyler now in the open environment. He continues to show signs highlighting key messages in the AVO.

AVO: If the real problem is EPI, ask your doctor if CREON could be right for you.

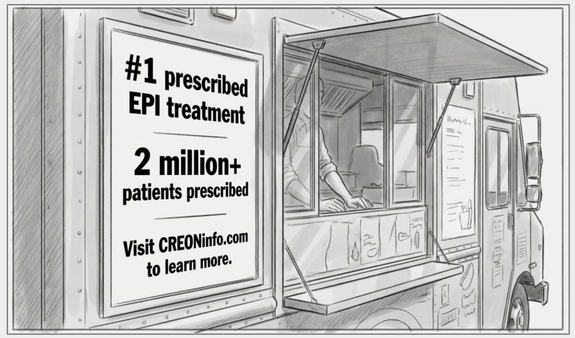
We cut to the end card with a pack shot featuring CREON capsules along with the logo: CREON (pancrelipase) Delayed-Release Capsules

SUPER: LEARN HOW ABBVIE COULD HELP YOU SAVE ON CREON (IMAGE OF LOGO) SaveOnCREON.COM

Captions: Capsules shown are not actual size and do not represent exact color.



THANK YOU

abbvie

GREY

07.2025

APPENDIX:
META ADS (directional)

META Ads: Real World

"The Receipt" (Find Them)

We open with a wide shot that features a row of vibrant food trucks, people gathered, enjoying their meals. Among them, we spot Jerry from the OLV.

Cut to an extreme close-up: a receipt printer on the metal countertop inside a food truck. We see the machine start printing a receipt—only instead of items, it lists a series of EPI symptoms. In the AVO and captions, we talk about how the real problem could the pancreas and a medical condition called EPI.

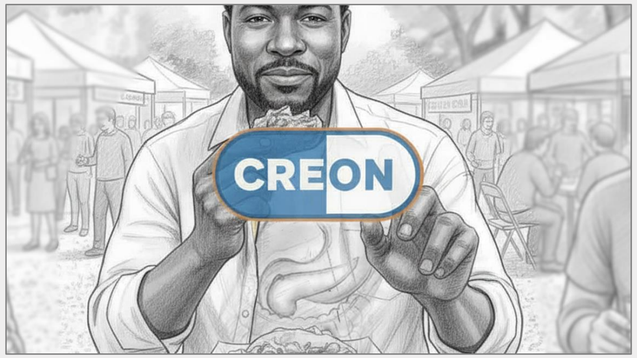
ALT: Menu: Patient is looking at the menu in front of food truck; people are waiting in line. The menu lists EPI symptoms.

"Ready" (Treat Them - NEW)

We open on patient walking to a food truck. The chef comes out from the food truck window and hits the CREON button—just like a kitchen call button—to signal his order's up.

"Button Transition" (Treat Them – NEW)

We see different patients holding a food item with one hand and tapping on the CREON button on screen with the other. Each time they tap, it transitions to another patient.



META Ads: Influencer

“Symptoms Review” (Find Them)

We open on an actor playing the role of a food influencer from EPI Eats.
In a selfie-video format, he begins to review a delicious new burger from Panky's Food Truck.

But when he tries the burger, he starts feeling digestive issues and instead of reviewing the burger, we hear his AVO and see captions describing potential symptoms and how the problem behind "stomach issues" could be the pancreas and a condition called EPI.

NOTE: We could use a different patient for this option.

“Activate Review” (Treat Them)

We return to the actor playing the role of a food influencer from EPI Eats.
In the same selfie-video format, this time, we see him begin his Panky's food truck burger review by pressing the "CREON Button."

We hear his AVO and show captions explaining how amazing the burger is, and how CREON is the #1 treatment for EPI and helps him digest the burger and absorb its nutrients.

META Ads: Open Up

“Spotlight” (Find Them)

We open on Tyler from our OLV in the infinite blue studio. We see him standing up eating a burger as he starts to feel a discomfort.

As the VO and captions point out that the problem behind those "stomach issues" could actually be the pancreas and a condition called EPI, we see a spotlight light up a glowing orange pancreas on the Tyler's t-shirt.

“Stay Open” (Treat Them)

We see Tyler from our OLV once more in the infinite blue studio. We see him press the "CREON button" and this makes the camera change the point of view, revealing that he's actually in an open environment.

At a hot dog stand in the background, Tyler eats a hot dog, and we hear his AVO and show captions explaining how CREON works and is the #1 treatment for EPI, keeping his food choices open.

Tyler presses the CREON button once more and now we see a popcorn cart in the background, as he eats a bag of popcorn.